HUDSON GIVEN UP AS LOST.

LAKE STEAMER WENT DOWN WITH HER CREW OF 25.

Captain of Steamer Nicol Saw the Hu in Distress, but Was Not Able to Ald Her Foundared in Lake Superior, off Eagle River, on Monday.

SAULT STE MARIE, Mich., Sept 19.—The steamer Hudson of the Western Transit Company, foundered in Lake Superior, of Eagle River, last Monday and her crew of twenty-five men were undoubtedly the growned. This is in all probability the steamer that was seen to go down by people on the beach at Eagle River on Monday renoon. The news of the identity of the hat steamer was brought here to-day by sighted the Hudson in distress, but were unable to do anything for her crew because their peril.

The Hudson left Duluth for Buffalo on Sunday and had a cargo consisting of 22,500 bushels of flaxseed and 69,000 bushels of wheat, bound for Buffalo. The Western Transit Company is the Lake line of the New ork Central Railroad, and the Hudson was one of the best steel freight steamers on the lakes. It is believed that some accident befell her machinery or steering geer in the furious gale which swept Lake Superior on Monday, and she fell into the trough of the sea and rolled until her cargo shifted. The steamer then sprang a leak or her hatches were broken by the seas sweeping her decks and undered within sight of land. The proximity of the steamer to the beach at Eagle River is believed to be due to the determination of Capt. A. J. McDonald to put is steamer ashore in an effort to save the rew and the boat.

The John M. Nicol reached here from Duluth early this morning. Capt. William McLean at once began inquiries for the Hudson when he reached the canal, and when told that the Western liner had not appeared, he at once declared his belief that she had foundered and that all hands

The Hudson left Duluth some time after the Nicol," said Capt. McLean, "and caught up with us and passed during Sunday night. At 10 o'clock Monday morning we caught up to the Hudson again. The gale was then at its height, and seas were making a clean sweep over our decks. The Nicol was leaking, and in bad shape. I had headed the boat for Keweenaw Point, intending to seek shelter on the lee side. As we appreached the Hudson, we saw that her steam was apparently gone, and she was lying in the trough of the sea. Distress signals were flying and the crew were seen on deck chinging to the port rail. The cargo had shifted, and the steamer had a bad list to starboard. It seemed to us that the Hud-did not have long to remain affoat. We passed within half a mile of her and "We passed within half a mile of her and it was hard to go on and leave the men to their fate. But our own ship was leaking badly and we had all the pumps going to keep her affoat. It was out of the question to stop, however much the call of humanity might demand it. To the westward I had sighted the smoke of another steamer and I hoped that she would be in better shape to lend aid to the Hudson's crew. I thought that third steamer was the Gilchrist, a steel ship of large size. the Gilchrist, a steel ship of large size. The Nicol finally reached shelter under the peninsula and laid there forty-eight hours. By the time we had reached still water there was three feet of water in f the Hudson had been taken off by the Gilchrist that he was greatly moved when he learned to-day that the Gilchrist, which arrived here Tuesday morning, which arrived here Tuesday morning, had not seen the doomed boat. In com-pany with the Nicol under Kewenaw Peninsula was the steamer Cartagena, which made several attempts to brave which made several attempts to brave the storm and push into the head of the lake. She was driven head lake. She was driven back each time and her captain reported passing through wreckage near the point and not far from the place where the Hudson was last seen by the crew of the Nicol. When Capt. McLean left the Hudson she was eight miles west of Eagle River. The first reports of the foundering of the Hudson were received Monday when people living on the shore near Eagle River said they had seen a steamer having two smokestacks and two masts founder in the lake three miles from shore. They thought lake three miles from shore They thought the crew had been rescued, as they had seen another steamer near the sinking boat. This was probably the Nicol. The beach was patrolled for wreckage but none has come ashore

The Hudson was one of the stanchest ships on the Lakes. She was built in 1885 for the Western Transit Company at Detect and measured 2,297 tons. Her value vas about $200,000 and her cargo was worth about $100,000. A sister ship, the Harlem, went on the rocks of Isle Royale, directly across the lake from the place where the Hudson went down, in the winter of 1898, and remained there over a year. She was finally released but the wrecking and repair bills amounted to more than the value of the steamer.

MISS ANDREWS KILLED BY GAS. Daughter of Westehester District Attorney Was Visiting in Brooklyn.

Miss Florence Andrews, the sixt en-year old daughter of District Attorney George C. Andrews of Westchester county, was accidentally asphyxiated by illuminating gas at the residence of Mrs. R. E. Anthony, 373 East Seventeenth street, Flatbush, early yesterday morning.

She was the youngest child and was taken to various places of amusement and sea-side resorts on Tuesday and Wednesday. when she returned to the Anthony has 10:30 o'clock on Wednesday night when she returned to the Anthony house at 10:30 o'clock on Wednesday night she was tired and immediately went to her room. She was in excellent spirits and had made arrangements for a trip yesterday with Mrs. Anthony.

In the room she occupied is a chandeller with a patent lighter. It is believed that she turned on one of the other jets and then just before going to bed shut off the gas, but at the same time accidentally pulled the chain of the patent lighter.

The Anthony family smelt gas shortly after midnight and traced it to Miss Andrews's room. They found her in bed unconscious. Dr. Ludlam of East Sixteenth street and Dr. French of Beverly road were summoned, but on their arrival probounced Miss Andrews dead.

Mr. Andrews, the girl's father, was notified of the accident and he came to Brooklyn yesterday morning. Coroner Burger issued a permit and the body was taken to Tarrytown last evening.

Guarded All the Way to Freenals by Troops

-8,000 Men Guarding Complegne.
Special Cable Despatch to TRE SUK.
PARIS, Sept. 19.—The train conveying the Casr and Casrina and President Loubet left Complegne at 8 o'clock this morning for Rheims. The weather was fine. Two squadrons of the Garde Republicaine escorted the Czar and Czarina and President Loubet to the station. The garrison took ssion of the streets before 6 o'clock. Eight thousand men were on duty guarding the town. Troops were also posted all the way to Fresnois, where the Czar witness the manœuvres. The Czar reached Freenois at 10 o'clock in the morning. The manœuvree had been suspended in order to enable the troops to refresh themselves prior to the res tion of the sham fighting for his Majesty's benefit. The Czar, accompanied by President Loubet and the Czarina, drove to the field of action. Gen. Andre, Minister of War, rode on horseback alongside the carriage The route was guarded by cavalry, who drove the populace back to a safe distance from the Czar's carriage. Other etrict precautions were taken to safeguard his Majosty.

When the party arrived at the scene of the macuvres the Czar mounted a chestnut horse and witnessed a fine spectacle, which was far superior to yesterday's naval review. The heavy firing of the two armies frightend the partridges, pheasants. hares and rabbits in the vicinity and sent them flying in every direction. Considerable amusement was caused by numbers of the troops pursuing them. Finally in the course of the manosuvres the supposed enemy was driven out of Fort Vitry. Luncheon for the imperial party was served at 1:30 P. M. President Loubet toasted the Czar. He said he was glad to offer the army's thanks for the interest his Majesty had taken in the manouvres His presence, he added, constituted high regard and strong encouragement for

The Czar in reply said that the manœuvres he had witnessed had allowed him personally to appreciate the degree of perfection of the brilliant French Army, at which he rejoiced from his heart, as the army was a legitimate object of pride to France. In conclusion he said:

My friend, I drink to the brave French Army, to its glory and prosperity. I love to consider it a powerful supporter of the principle of equity, on which rests the general order, peace and well-being of nations."

The second supply of Russian decorations. contained in a case weighing 100 pounds, has arrived at Complegne. The city of Rheims was grandly decorated.

Triumphal arches, flowers, flags and garlands could be seen on every side. The greatest good humor prevailed, although here were some protests against the excessive police precautions.

The orders that had been issued to keep the road to Rheims clear were executed in a determined manner. There were some protests against the rough manner in which these orders were enforced by the police and military.

To-morrow President Loubet will give "Sovereign's" day of sport in the Forest of Compiegne. Some three hundred pheas-ants and numbers of roebuck from Rambouillet were released yesterday. Parisians are asking if this means that the Czar will visit Paris.

M. Grandidier, the manager of the paper Libertaire, has been arrested for the publication of articles which are regarded as incitement to violence against the Czar. The Figure and the Libre Parole say the writer, M. Laurent Tailhade, the author of the article "Triumph of Domesticity," dealing with the journey of the Czar, will be arrested under the law against Anarchists and will be charged with inciting to murder

Cardinal Langenieux Archbishop of Rheims, refused to submit to the censorship of the Government the speech he intended to make on the occasion of the Czar's visit to the Cathedral, with the result that the reception at the Cathedral will not be held, the Czar making merely an informal visit there.

M Dausset, President of the Paris Council, went to Compiègne to request an audi-ence of Prime Minister Waldeck-Rousseau, but the latter declined to see him. It leaks out, however, that the Czar will come to TRIAL OF NEW AIRSHIP.

Balloon Comes to Grief, but Santos-Dumont Escapes Injury.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN.
PARIS, Sept. 19.-M. Santos-Dumont, the young Brazilian aeronaut, made another trial of his new airship this morning. The balloon came to grief, but M. Santos-Dumont was not injured.

The latest accident was apparently M. Santos-Dumont's fault. Finding that the motor did not work well he descended to the Bois de Boulogne, where, with the aid of his staff, he rectified the errors and made another start When the balloon had ascended about twenty yards he ordered the release of the guide-ropes.

He took his attention off the steering the airship in order to see how the rudder was working and the result was that the balloon collided with some trees and became a total wreck

M. Santos-Dumont was not hurt and maintained his customary serenity. He will give up all further experiments this year and will go to Nice to enjoy a

It began warming the marble of politics into zeel according to wisdom, quenching its volcances, uniting the inter-ests of all peoples, and it ended in a universal good overcoming evil. His public intent was uniform, consistent, sympathet lo-and so far as it fathomed the abysi of difficulties was wise, brave, unselfish. May his history waken a tone of truth that shall reverberate, renew euphony, emphasize humane power and bear banner into the vast forever. While our nation's ensign of peace and prosperity waves over land and sea, while her reapers waves over land and sea, while her respers are strong, her sheaves garnered, her treasury filled, she is suddenly stricken, called to mourn the loss of her renowned leader. Tears blend with her triumphs. She stops to think, to mourn; yea, to pray that the God of harvest send her more laborers, who, while they work for their own country, shall sacredly regard the liberty of other peoples and the rights of man.

What cannot love and righteousness achieve for the race? All that can be accomplished, and more than history has yet recorded. All good that ever was written, taught or wrought, comes from God and human faith in the right. Through God and human faith in the right. Through divine love the right Government is assimilated, the way pointed out, the process shortened and the joy of acquiescence consummated. May God sanctify our nation's sorrow in this wise, and His rod and His staff comfort the living as it did the departing. O, may His love shield, support and comfort the chief mourner at the desolate home.

its clothing in her teeth and with one arm clasped around her four-year-old daughter, Mrs. Theodore Pria climbed two stories down the fire escape last night to get away from her insane husband after he had attacked her and the children with a revolver. Pria is a Cuban barber and lives at 745 Tinton avenue in The Bronx. The neighbors say that he was at one time a well-to-do tobacco grower in Cuba and that the loss of his plantation there had made him insane. There seemed to be no question last night about their story

When he got home from work, the four-year-old daughter, Capella, ran to the head of the stairs and called out "hello papa" to him. He was then at the foot of the second flight on his way up. In response to his child's greeting, he fired three shots at her and then rushed upstairs after her.

Capella ran screaming into the flat and her mother slammed and locked the door just in time to shut the man out. He fired two more shots through the door and then tried to force the lock. That was when the mether fied down the fire escape with her children.

Neighbors called in the police and Pria surrendered to them with the remark: "I did it."

SOUTRE CROKER LEAVES TOWN

HE'S GONE TO VISIT SENATOR MURPHY BY THE SEA.

flises a Call From Boss McLaughlin' Right - Hand Man, Sheviln - Sullivan Plotting With the Brooklyn Democracy to Capture Tammany's City Convention

Squire Richard Croker of Moat Rouse, Wantage, Berks, England, who is paying his annual visit of inspection to his colonial estate in this country, went down yesterday to the country place of Ex-Senator Murphy at Long Branch. He left the Tippers and Tappers' Club, which is his American headquarters, at 11 o'clock and caught the noon train for the New Jersey resort. Squire Croker likes the watering place at which Mr. Murphy has his home. He has visited at the house on several of his other trips to this country, and he has found that the climate agrees with his constitution. The Squire may be back at his headquarters here to-day, and he may not come back until Monday of next week. The tenantry did not make any demonstration on the departure of the Squire, it not being known generally about the estate that he was to go away. Had there been announcement of his intended departure, many of the leaser officials would have been at the station to see him depart, but he took the precaution that they should not know of his plans, because he thought that there was no reason why there should be any demonstration on the occasion of his taking such a short trip. Then, too, the Squire recognizes that many of the tenants on his property take part in the demonstrations to him at considerable personal expense and inconvenience, and it is not his desire that they should put themselves out in this way unnecessarily

By going away as he did, Squire Croker missed an opportunity of having a chat with the Hon. James Shevlin, one of the lieu-tenants of ex-Register Hugh McLaughlin of Kings county. Mr. Shevlin got back to town late Wednesday evening, and last night be went up to the Tippers and Tapers Club. He had a chat with Mayor Van Wyck and another with John F. Carroll, the head oiler in the Squire's Fourteenth street shops. Mr. Shevlin wanted to find out what the political situation was. It was impossible to learn what passed between Mr. Shevlin and Mr. Carroll, because both of them are very close-mouthed men. It was declared, however, by several of the tenants from Brooklyn who visited the club, that Comptroller Coler has made rep-resentations to Mr. McLaughlin expressing his willingness to accept the Tamin nomination for Mayor, and that nomination for slayor, McLaughlin , who has always taken a kindly interest in the welfare of the young gentle-man, was not unwilling to see him nomina-

Seth Low, the selection of the anti-Tammany conference, is particularly strong in Brooklyn. He was Mayor of the city twice. Lieut.-Gov. Woodruff and other Republicans of that borough believe that with his name at the head of the ticket they will be able to elect their county ticket they will be able to elect their county react-Mr. McLaughlin is anxious to avoid this. He wants to have the city ticket composed of men who will strengthen his hands in Brooklyn. It is the boast of the Tammany district leaders that they can deliver the voters of their districts for any candidate who is nominated. Mr. McLaughlin feels had under the circumstances Sourier Croker who is nominated. Mr. McLaughlin feels that under the circumstances Squire Croker ought to take into consideration the needs of the Kings county situation and build the ticket largely with regard to that. Squire Croker, however, is much opposed to Mr. Coler and it was declared last night that it would be a personal hundlisting for to Mr. Coler and it was declared last night that it would be a personal humiliation for him to be forced to accept the Brooklynite.

Last evening there was a story from Brooklyn to the effect that Senator Timothy D. Sullivan, who has recently added to his power by capturing the Second Assembly district of Manhattan from Squire Croker's man, ex-Judge P. Divver, had been across the Bridge and had had a talk with some of the Brooklyn leaders in the Clarendon Hotel. It is known that Senator Sullivan refused to permit Squire Croker's Sullivan refused to permit Squire Croker's ment of his constituents last winter, and ment of his constituents last winter, and it was asserted that he was willing to give aid and comfort to almost any enemy of the Squire's. If he should form a combination with the leaders of the Brooklyn machine and they should let the Queens county delegates join them, they would be able to control the Tammany city convention, which is called to meet on Oct. 3, and if they wanted to, they could send Squire Croker back to his home in England without much difficulty. There has been some hint that there would be a fight against the Squire in the convention or before it.

without much difficulty. There has been some hint that there would be a fight against the Squire in the convention or before it, and that he would be compelled to come to terms. Coler himself remarked once that Croker tright find that he had the fight of his life on his hands this fall.

At the club last evening it was asserted that Edward Bell was a likely candidate for the office of President of the Borough of Manhattan. Mr. Bell sold his seat in the Stock Exchange this week for upward of $60,000, so he could afford to make a comfortable campaign contribution without borrowing any money. President Coogan, who has the office now, is also able to make a campaign contribution, and he sends five hundred dollar floral offerings when the Squire sails for home every fall. This is about as far as the slate makers have got in the kindly work of preparing Squire Croker's ticket for him.

TWO COUNTERFEITERS CAUGHT Were at Work on Spurious Coins When Detectives Entered.

Central Office Detectives Petrosino Krauch and Firneisen arrested two men yesterday in the basement of 327 East Twenty-fifth street on the charge of counterfeiting silver coins. A complete outfit for making spurious coins and a large number of counterfeits were seized.

Two men were found at work polishing, coloring and finishing off a tableful of coins, which were being thrown on an old mattress to dry as soon as finished. They offered fight for a moment, one of them producing an old-fashioned horse pistol, but they were quickly overcome. At headquarters they described themselves as Guiseppe Di Luca, whom Petrosino recognized as an ex-convict, and Angelo Anca. They are Sicilians and correspondence found among their offects shows that they have been writing all over the country. Their moulds and other paraphernalia fill a trunk, and they had wholly or partly finished 12 dollars, 57 halves, 189 quarters and 97 dimes. Two men were found at work polishing.

Changes in Basketball Rules. Changes in the playing rule, have been made by the Committee on Rules of the National Basketball League for the season of 1901-02. While the game in general re-mains the same, important alterations in the rules have been made. Dribbling plays. which it was reported were to be climinated are, however, retained. The new code of rules is expected to have effect in five differen ways, as follows: Advantages to the home team because of familiarity with the floor will be minimized: the referee will have an easier time in performing his duties; a premium will be placed on clean goal throwing without the use of the backboard. the game will be improved from the spectators' view-point by doing away with delays, also heavy will be improved from the spectators' viewpoint by doing away with delays, also heavy fines to be imposed on rowdyism; chances of injury to players will be decreased by a closer interpretation of the rule regarding charging and the shaping of the cages.

Hereafter all cages must be the same size and shape, a length of 60 feet and width of 35 feet being provided for. The corners must be rounded, baskets must be supported by brackets extending out twelve inches and tightly-drawn wire screens only are to serve as backboards. The idea of the rounded corners is to lessen the chances of injury, and of the basket extension to decrease the chances of caroming the ball into the goal. The number of times a team may take out time in case of injuries, i.e., is to be reduced to four in each half, the period of recuperation remaining three minutes. Another change will permit of two players holding the ball to struggle for it five seconds instead of the ball being at once called dead—Last year a rule was introduced compelling a player to keep one hand at his side while jumping for the ball, and the object of this rule was circumvented by first tapping the ball lightly and then catching it with both hands. This year it is explicitly stated in the rule that the ball must be batted with one hand and cannot be caught by that player. Charging from the rear will not be allowed, and a player crowding an opponent from the rear must play him with one arm extended and entirely free. Slugging and all other offences which call for disqualification are to be punished with as fine for the first offence, suspension for the third.
